Government Inspection Of A. M. A. Cadet Corps Highly Successful Despite Day Of Inclement Weather

UNITED STATES ARMY ROTC INSTRUCTOR GROUP
AUGUSTA MILITARY ACADEMY
FORT DEFIANCE, VIRGINIA

Letter to the Cadet Corps

I wish to express my appreciation and to personally commend each and every member of the Cadet Corps for their fine performance at the annual government inspection. I am extremely proud of the spirit shown during all the various military activities, especially in view of the adverse weather conditions. All of the activities conducted were very fine, however, I would like to pay special tribute to the full field display platoon and the demonstration squad for the rifle squad in the attack.

The most outstanding portion of the inspection was the formal inspection in ranks of the Cadet Corps. The personal appearance of each cadet, cleanliness of rifles, and answering of questions was of the highest caliber and the best that I have witnessed during my tour at AMA.

As I previously told you, the results of the inspection are based on the cadets' performance at all of the activities. The comment of the Inspection Team was "an outstanding ROTC unit".

I consider the results of the inspection demonstrate your great skill and competitive spirit, and reflect credit upon each and every member of Augusta Military Academy.

You may be justly proud of your individual contribution.

Lt. Col., Infantry

Band And Roller Rifles Win First At Dogwood Festival

The "Roller Rifles" and A.M.A. Band have again taken first place honors in competition with similar groups in festivities away from school. At the "Dogwood Festival" in Charlottesville, Va., both the 'Rifles' and Band were adjudged best and awarded first place trophies and seventy-five dollars cash awards in their respective competitions. These trophies add further crowding to Augusta's trophy cabinet, which most recently was enhanced with the above mentioned trophies, added to those recently brought home from the George Washington Day Parade in Alexandria, Va.

The reasons assigned for winning these two high honors can best be described by quoting the following from a letter sent to Gen. Roller by Capt. John C. G. Rennie, Asst. P.M.S.:

"Dear General Roller:

"In winning the Highest Awards at the Dogwood Festival Parade in Charlottesville, the AMA Roller Rifles and Band distinguished themselves by an outstanding performance of military precision, bearing and appearance which I have yet to see equalled by any school.

"Not only was their performance particularly fine but the military courtesy and conduct of each Cadet was exemplary.

"I received many comments to this effect from the Parade Officials and a very cordial invitation to return next year was extended by Mr. Lingle, the Parade Director. I felt very proud to be associated with the Roller Rifles not only for their accomplishments in precision drill but for the undaunted spirit which I feel defies any drill team to beat them, anywhere, any time."

We are indeed proud of the record that these two fine A.M.A. organizations are establishing for themselves and have high expectations that they will make similar showings at the Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester on the 28th of this month.

SPORTS FLASH

As we go to press A.M.A.'s baseball team maintains it's unbeaten record with a win over Hargrave — 8 - 4. Pitcher Causby does it again — Now pitching 1000 for the '61 season.

Inspection Team Headed By Col. Louis Aebischer

The annual Government Inspection of the Corps of Cadets of Augusta Military Academy, together with the Military Program and Academic and other facilities was completed on April 13th. In spite of unseasonably cool weather, intermittant rain, heavy clouds throughout the day and other adverse factors, the corps came through with perhaps the highest rating ever. Officially, the Honor Rating can only be awarded by the Department of the Army, through channels; however there is every indication that every phase of the inspection was with high honor.

No two of these annual inspections is ever just alike, no two teams of inspectors is looking for efficiency in exactly the same aspect of the military program, thus it is necessary for every possible part of the military and military program to be at top level of proficiency. Every single feature to be inspected; classroom lectures, classroom demonstrations and question periods, field demonstrations, rifle inspection, room inspection, are all carried out as if them alone were the determining factor. Each of these things were carried on whether or not a member of the inspecting team was obviously observing, and with the same degree of proficiency as in the obvious presence of an inspector. It is the 'casual side remark', or the perhaps direct occassional remark of any one of the inspectors that give the cue to the success of the inspection.

In no way can we better reveal the general outcome and expected Honor Rating to come, than by citing these words from the initial report of the inspecting team chairman.

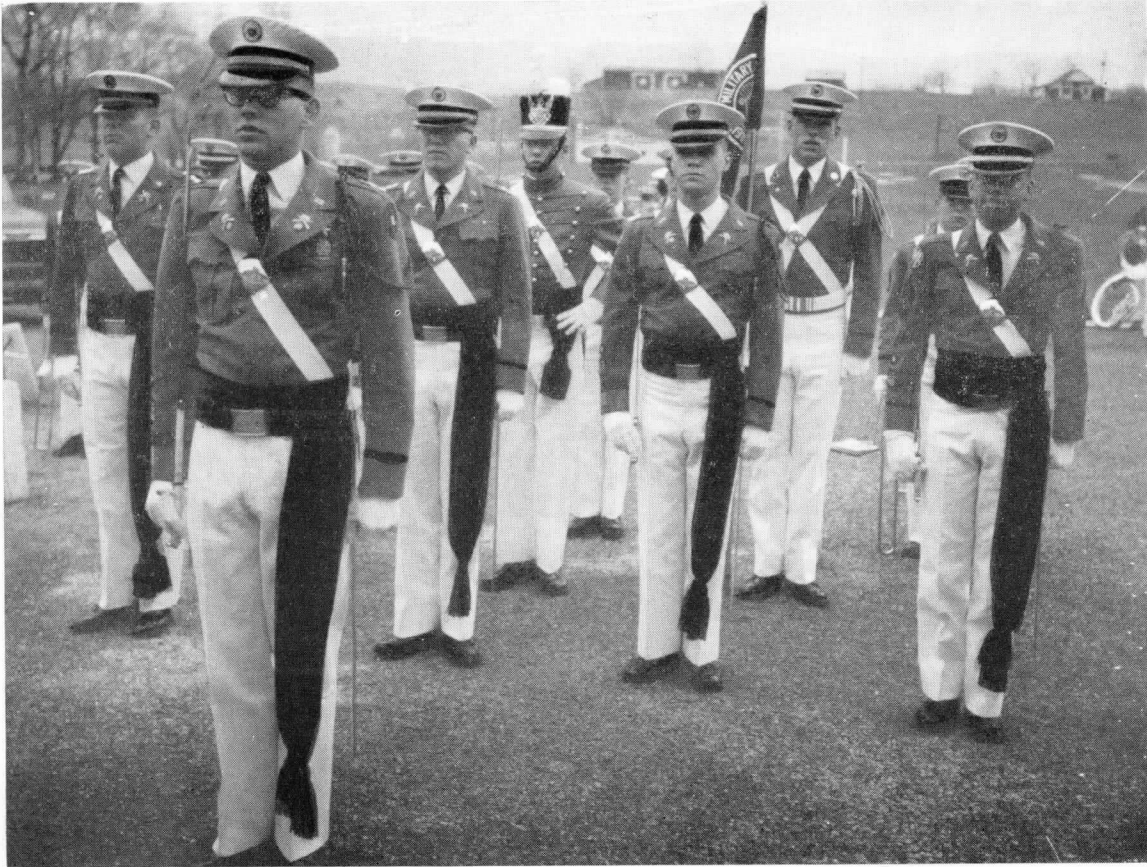

"The military training program at this academy is exceedingly well organized and accomplished in an outstanding manner. The overall curriculum allocates additional time for military subjects which is utilized in conducting outdoor training exercises as well as practical field tactical problems. Milieary instructions observed as of the highest caliber, with the facilities available easily classified as superior.

Individual cadets observed and questioned demonstrated a thorough knowledge of the military subjects taught at the academy. An exceptionally well organized and inspiring review was conducted despite adverse weather conditions.

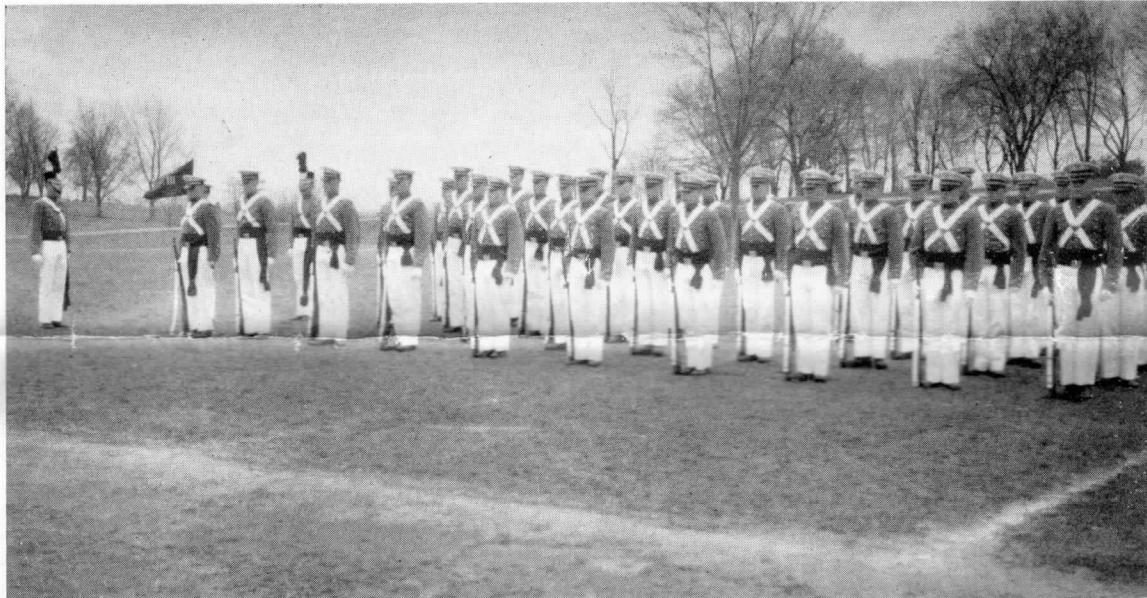

The school has as its head a remarkable individual, General Roller, whose personalized interest in each cadet has resulted in a friendly, almost father and son relationship, so effectively educational for young men in this formative period of their lives. He seems to serve as an inspiration to his "boys" which obviously is manifested in their disciplined deportment, keen intellect, and magnificent appearance."

INCLEMENT WEATHER FAILS TO

THE STAFF ALWAYS PLAYS A KEY ROLE in all that is A.M.A. Seen at formation for rifle inspection are: Front: Capt. Jim Crawford; 2nd row: Horsey, Wortman, Escoda and Chichester. Tiller and Dougherty, of the Band Co. can be seen behind staff.

THE PRECISION DRILL EXHIBITION by the full complement of the "Roller Rifles" impressed the inspection team tremendously. How do we know? The Colonel himself said so. This group has won several high honors in competition since Feb. 22nd. (See story on front page.)

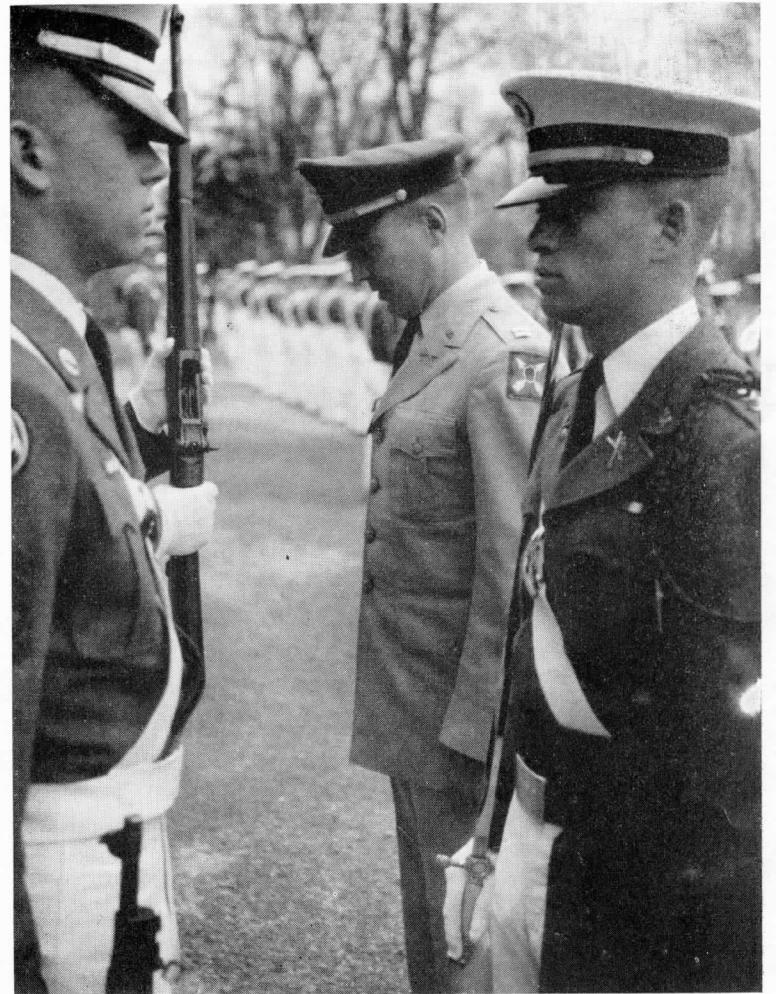

SG. JOHN THORNTON lectures to his class on night patrols, with Cadet Baker in patrolling uniform and camouflaged make-up for carrying out a night mission.

CADET CAPTAIN QUARTMAN and CAPT. QUARTMAN, G., of the Inspection Team, give a close look at the individual appearance of each member of "C" Co. Shiny shoes, shiny brass and immaculately cleaned rifles are easy to spot, and all these were found to be outstanding.

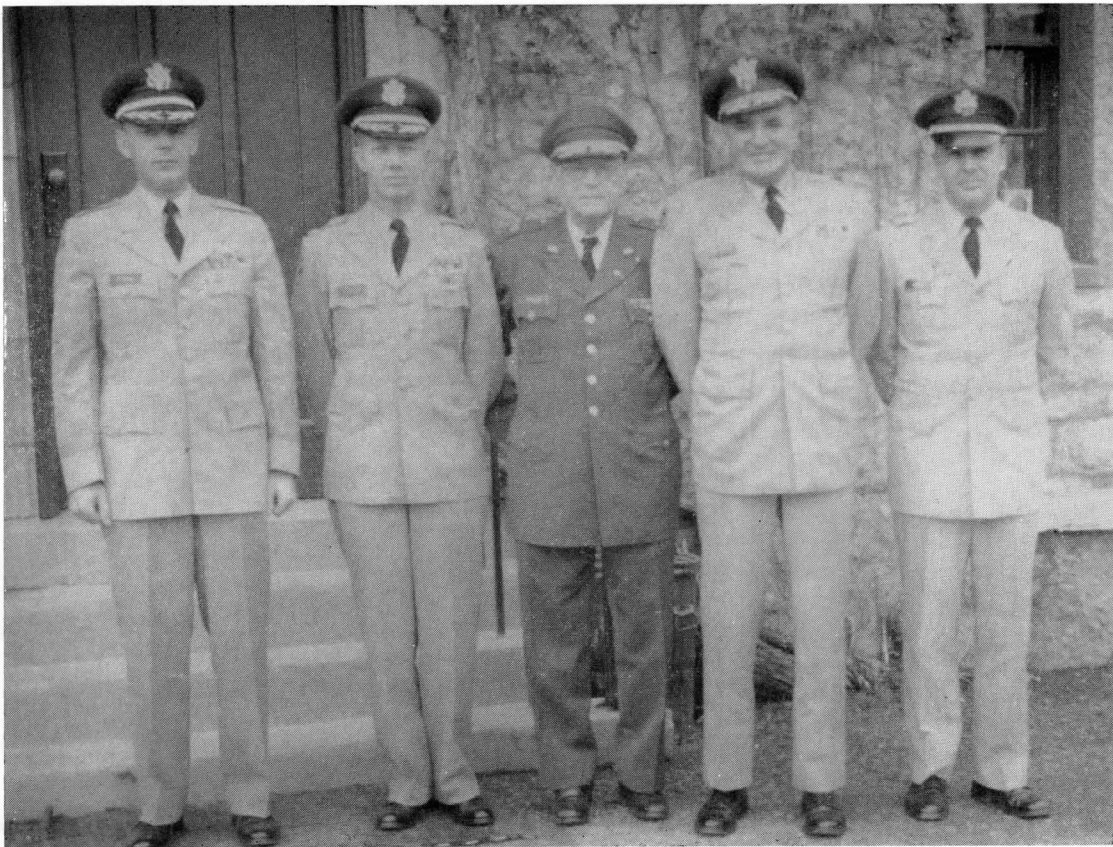

CADET CAPT. WAYNE BLAYLOCK, of Headquarters Co. accompanies Major James C. Welch, of the inspection team during rifle inspection of his company. The "C.W.'s" as always, made an excellent showing.

A LIGHTER MOMENT as Major Savedge chats with Col. Aebischer.

DAMPEN SPIRIT OF ANNUAL G. I.

PAUSING ENROUTE TO INSPECTION of Academic Facilities are Col. Stark, Major Welch, Gen. Roller, Col. Aebischer and Capt. Hall.

CADET CAPT. McEWAN gets his charges ready for "Full Field" inspection, which was moved into the gym due to inclement weather. The damp weather did not dampen the spirits of the cadets during full day program of demonstrations.

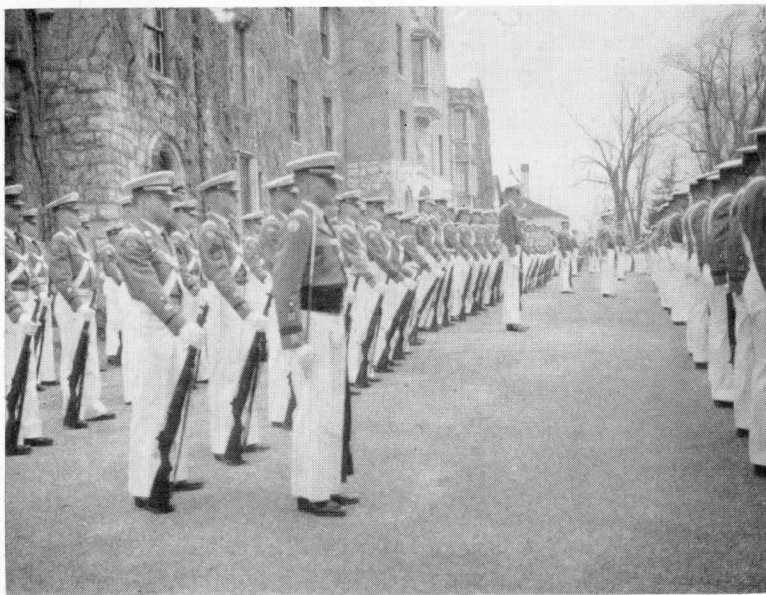

COL. AEBISCHER, himself, chairman of the Inspection Team, inspects Band Co. He seems to be satisfied with the little cadet with the big horn.

CADET CAPT CHRIS HORSEY, Battle Group Adjutant, has been a 'work Horse' of the Corps all year. He is not only "Jim" Crawford's right hand man, he is also the "right arm" of the Corps. Here is Chris during G.I. and Roller Rifle Drill.

"BIG BOY" and "OLLIE" watch as Col. Aebischer samples apple pie. Verdict — Excellent.

THE CORPS FORMED on the black top for Rifle Inspection, which was carried out successfully despite low clouds, howling winds and threatening rains accompanied by a cold break which sent additional chills through every cadet already having 'chills' of anticipation of this part of G.I.

MRS. DAVIS is flanked by Gen. Roller and Col. Aebischer in front of "J" Barracks after inspection of the Junior Division. After 18 years of G. Inspections, Mrs. Davis takes this annual event in stride.
